PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

It's official, we now have an approved "Patterson Point Land Management and Restoration Plan". The Sonoma County Agricultural Preservation and Open Space District has approved our plan, as required by the terms of our agreement. <http://villagrande.org/Plan>

We will be ready for the next phase of restoration when the bird nesting season is over come September, starting on the 24th with a big volunteer day to make a significant dent in the removal of invasive species.

We are inviting everyone, and if you have not been to a volunteer day before, this is your chance to join the fun. In the meantime, volunteers are welcome to join the Restoration Committee as it clears the Firehouse Plaza of ivy and trains volunteer supervisors for the work crews we plan to hire to help in September.

We'll discuss some of the improvements to Patterson Point at a special Town Hall Meeting on May 28. See you there!

President of the Board of Directors

MAKING HISTORY: A DAY IN VILLA GRANDE MEMORIAL DAY

On Sunday, May 29, FoVG will launch the Villa Grande Historical Archive with a demonstration of its new oral history project, plans for a historic and photographic database, followed by a self-guided tour of local homes. The tour will include the Windmill House, the General Store, and will end at the Old Hotel with a no-host cocktail reception and silent auction.

If you would like to have your old photos digitized and preserved in the Villa Grande Archive please bring them along to the History Center and we'll scan them right there. If you would be willing to have your home featured on the Tour, or have an item to donate to the auction, please contact Roberto Esteves at esteves@comcast.net.

The day includes three events:

History Center (free): 1-3 p.m. at 21865 Russian River Avenue. See old photos of Villa Grande and scan your historic photos.

Home & Town Tour: 3-5 p.m. Self-guided, with owners and docents at each house.

Cocktails and silent auction: 4-7 p.m. at the Old Hotel, 21849 East Street.

Tickets for the Tour and Old Hotel Event are $15.00 each in advance or $20 at the door. Purchase online at:

BIRDS OF PATTERSON POINT

One spring, I was canoeing past a gravel beach on the Russian River that was drying out after being under the winter waters. A movement caught my eye, and I could see these fluffy little tennis-ball sized things scurrying around. Before the beach was out of sight as I floated past, I was able to identify the moving objects as baby Killdeer—a bird that's a member of the Plover family. Mom and Dad were nearby supervising their chicks.

While Killdeer nest on rocky or gravelly ground, other birds prefer to nest in the dense tangles of bushes or in a hollow log. Some birds burrow into the banks of the Russian River to nest, some excavate a cavity in a tree trunk, and yet others build nests by slapping sticky mud against a rock face (or even your house) and molding it into a domed home. Many song birds build the quintessential nest in a tree, shaped like a cup and built from grasses, bark and twigs. We've all enjoyed the large Osprey nest on top of a dead snag across from Patterson Point Preserve. If the Ospreys continue to nest there, they'll probably add onto it, like a yearly remodel.

As a place for birds to nest, Patterson Point Reserve provides excellent habitat for a large variety of species. There are 70 different species that nest in the Villa Grande area. How many of these birds nest on the Preserve itself, we're not sure, but for the next five years, we will be participating in the Sonoma County breeding bird survey and will develop a list of birds that nest specifically on our land. Over the past ten years, I've documented 108 bird species around Villa Grande.

Since birds can nest anywhere from the ground to high up in a redwood tree, we have to set limits on the time we spend removing invasive plants in Patterson Point Preserve so that we do not disturb nesting birds. We create enough of a ruckus on the paths and the beaches as it is. Be aware that as we remove the ivy and blackberries, we are changing the habitat. And as the native plants return, this is another habitat change making it difficult for bird species that are less flexible. You can do your part by staying on the paths and being alert to the fact that we are sharing this wonderful place with birds and other critters.

When you're on the Preserve this spring and summer, listen for the woodpeckers drumming for mates; watch for the birds that nest under a slab of loose tree bark or those that affix their nest to the trunk of a tree. Keep your eyes peeled, and perhaps you'll spot a hummingbird nest usually made of spider webbing so it will stretch to accommodate the nestlings. And if you're really lucky, maybe you'll see baby Killdeer on our gravel beach. For an up to date log of bird happenings go to villagrande.org/Bird_Report

WILD WILDE

The Blue Heron Restaurant in Duncans Mills was the site of our annual winter dress-up party honoring Oscar Wilde and/or the Wild West. Costumes ran the gamut, spirits were high and the dancing energetic. FoVG earned $950 at this wild and crazy event.

Joanne McCabe, Victoria Wikle and Terry Matsik-Getchell at the Wilde Wild West Party.

WEST PARTY

Oscar was there, dazzling the merrymakers with wit and outfit. Sin Soracco and Andrew Ahn were honored and presented with a handsome plaque with FoVG's first Semper Virens Award for their generosity and support of the Friends of Villa Grande in 2010.
